

CAN THE AVIATORS MOUNT ABOVE GRIM PEAK? ASKS WORLD

Bird-Men Parmalee and Turpin, in Aeroplane Demonstration at Roswell Park Today, to Risk Lives in Daring Battle With Elements of the Air—Will Probably Fly to Cripple Creek District Inter-est in Outcome Is Intense

PROGRAM FOR TODAY—HOME-COMING DAY.
10:00 A. M.—"Chuck dinner" by cowboys, etc., in front of city hall, giving a description of cowboy life.
2:00 P. M.—Wright Brothers' aviation exhibition at Roswell park, Parmalee and Turpin, aviators. Flights to begin at 2 o'clock. (Take north-bound Tejon street cars.)
8:30 P. M.—Masking on the street, Pikes Peak and Nevada avenues as far as Temple theater.
9:00 P. M.—Mask ball at Temple theater.

Yesterday Philip O. Parmalee and T. Clifford Turpin, two of the most noted aviators in the world, stood upon the summit of Pikes Peak and gazed in speechless wonder upon the almost endless vista of mountains that lay below them on three sides, peak upon peak, as far as the eye could reach. Today these two young men will attempt to circle about the lofty summit of the giant mountain with nothing to prevent them from being dashed to instant death upon the rocky heights except their mastery of planes and motors with which man, after centuries of vain ambition, has learned to conquer gravitation and ride upon the air.

Will they succeed? Will today witness the crowning triumph of aerial history, when a bird-man, dashing through space at 60 or 80 miles an hour, rises from the plains over the range of mountains that flank the Peak, and speeding far above their rugged tops, encircles its lofty crest, flecking the face of the setting sun as it hangs low above the western range?

This is the question that today will be upon the lips of the thousands and tens of thousands who are awaiting the flights of the intrepid Wright aviators this afternoon with an eagerness that can hardly await the hour appointed for them to fly. Before the night has fallen it will be answered. If the answer is "yes," the news will flash around the world. If the answer is "no," there will still be the satisfaction—assuredly complete enough for everyone—of having seen spectacular and thrilling exhibitions of the art of flying, for Parmalee and Turpin both promise that even though they fail to master the mountains, there will be no room left for disappointment.

If it is within the realm of human-given way, plunging its pilot to instant possibility, at the present stage of the development of aerial science, one or both of these brilliant aviators, whose performances have startled the world, today or tomorrow will have in their wonderful machines above the topmost crest of the Peak. Although both are doubtful that this feat can be accomplished, it is entirely within the realm of possibility, if not probability, that they will be able to perform a feat equally spectacular, as Parmalee has expressed his determination to fly over the mountains to the south of the Peak, a swing above the Cripple Creek district and return on the other side, thereby making a circle of the Peak.

In this attempt the new machine turned out by the Wright Brothers, and fittingly named "The Pike," in honor of the scene of its initial flight, will be used, and if its always conservative makers are not mistaken, the machine will demonstrate that a new epoch has been begun in the evolution of the biplane.

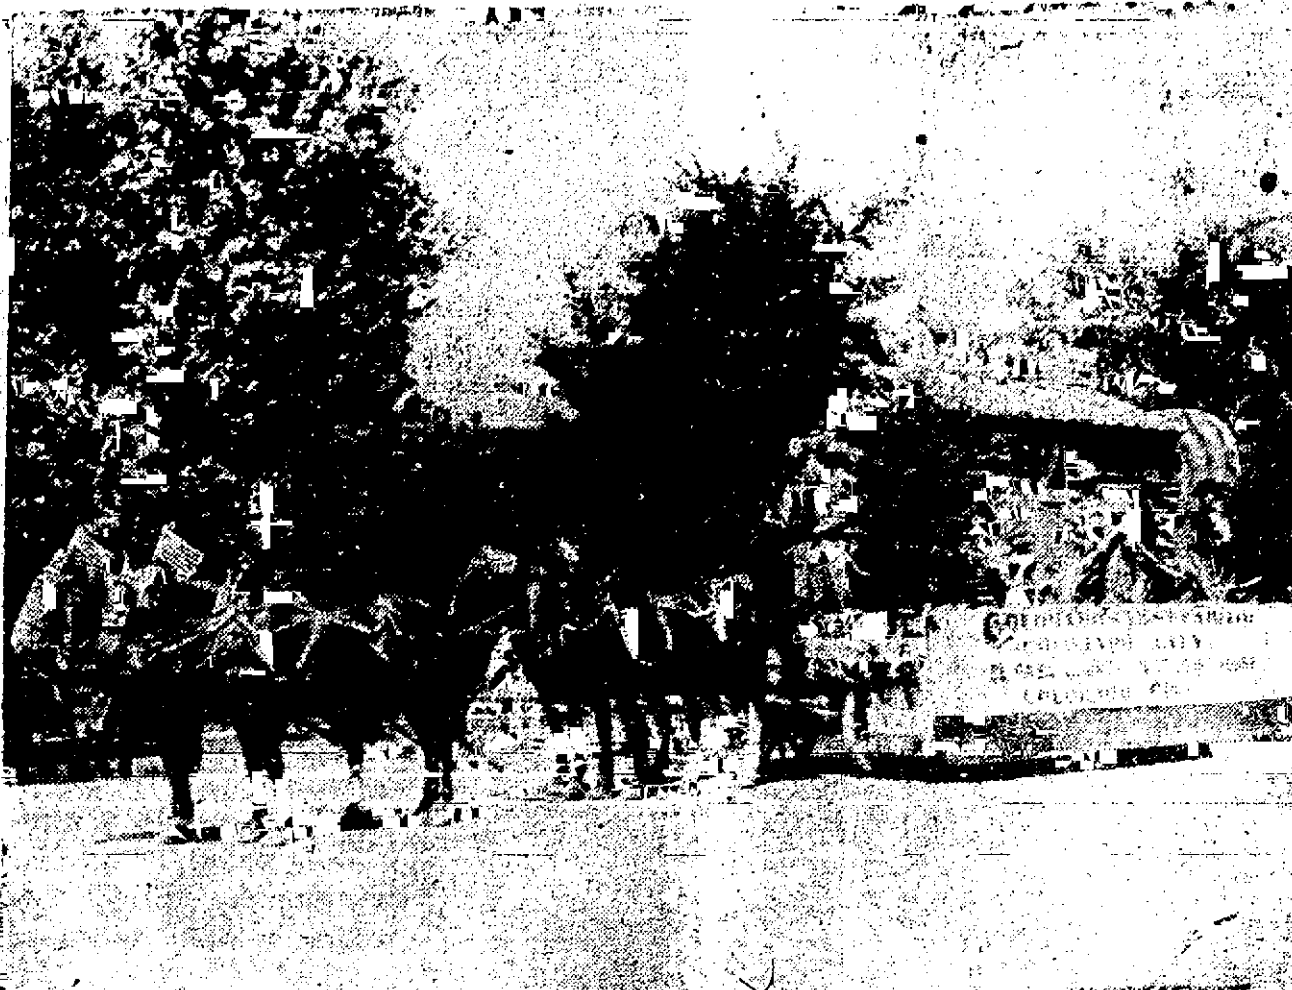

Most Powerful Made.
"The Pike" and its sister ship, "The Skylark," are the most powerful machines ever turned out by the Wrights, and the former, particularly, is far stronger than the aeroplanes in which previous flights by this company's aviators have been made. The wings can be warped to a far greater extent than those of the older models, making it possible for turns and spirals to be made in one-third the angle heretofore required. This will not only permit far more thrilling flights and evolutions, but lessens the danger to the aviator in making the hair-raising plunges for which the Wright aviators have been famous and under the strain of which more than 400 machines have

But death is the last thought in the mind of any man who rides the air, and Parmalee and Turpin, however fearful operators may be lest some catastrophe befall them, see no exception to the rule. Yesterday afternoon, after their trip up the Peak, where they studied the aerial paths they will have to travel above the mountains, they rode about the city, enjoying the decorations, watching the parade and enjoying themselves as care-free as any one of the throngs who today will hold their breath in awestruck admiration and tremulous fear while these two, darting and twisting through the air thousands of feet above them, make sport of death.

The Start's the Thing.
Neither Parmalee nor Turpin anticipates any difficulty in flying after he once gets into the air, but the hard part will be getting the start, owing to the high altitude—more than 8,000 feet above the sea level—from which they leave the ground. To get the required elevating power it will be necessary for the machines to run the entire length of the field at Roswell park, with motors going at their maximum speed, but with the engines of exceptional power with which their planes are fitted, they expect no serious trouble.

Once they skim above the fence, the spectators will be treated to what will probably be as marvellous and exciting an exhibition of aerial evolutions as has ever been witnessed in this country, for these men are here for business and will not hesitate to take the most desperate chances in order that the people may have a succession of thrills to remember as long as they

Although in point of excitement and speculative interest the flights of the Wright aviators, Philip O. Parmalee and T. Clifford Turpin, today and tomorrow, will mark its dramatic culmination, the summer carnival came to a climax yesterday in the imposing pioneer and civic parade which expressed at once the reminiscent spirit of the celebration and the progress of 40 years which it commemorates.

Colorado Springs has never before seen a pageant rivaling that of yesterday. Before applauding throngs which lined the streets on either side for blocks and blocks perhaps 50,000 people in all passed in impressive and picturesque review a procession stretching out over a length of four miles in which every epoch in the brief but eventful history of the community was portrayed and every element in its present life represented. And the story it told was that of the march of civilization, the story that is the same wherever the white race has pushed into the wilderness, driving back the aborigine, establishing the frontier home, founding the settlement and transforming the uncultivated waste into the humming center of modern life and industry. And particularly did it tell the story of a community in which the spirit of cooperation reigns supreme, and which aspires to even greater progress in the future than the wonderful advance in the two generations that embrace its past.

During the morning hours the sky was cloudy, and at noon a shower made it appear that the program might be interfered with, but within a few moments the sky cleared as if by magic, and an hour before the parade began the sun was shining with its customary brightness, which was reflected in the festive spirit of the city. One accident marred the day, when a horse ridden by one of the militia officers ran away, and dashing into the crowd opposite the grandstand on Cascade avenue, injured several persons. Fortunately, however, no fatality resulted, and the injured are expected to recover soon.

The pioneer was throughout the day the real king of the carnival, and in the evening an event that will be remembered by hundreds as the most pleasant of the celebration was the reception given by the El Paso County Pioneer association. It was the largest and most enthusiastic gathering of oldtimers ever held in the state, and fortunate indeed were those who were able, in personal reminiscence, to live again the stirring incidents of the days when the Pikes Peak region was the country's western borderland and Colorado Springs an infant colony.

The wild west show at Roswell park late in the afternoon, and dancing by the Ute Indians in their camp near Stratton park were the other features of the second day's carnival program which was in every way a complete, unqualified success.

The first event of the day was the pioneer and civic parade, and by noon the streets were crowded, with everyone seeking vantage points from which to view the pageant, while an inkling of what a brilliant spectacle it was to be was given by the appearance of

Animal Ridden by Lieut. Ragle Becomes Unmanageable in Front of Grandstand

Sensational Acts Pulled Off at Big Wild West Exhibition in Roswell Park

Three Seriously Hurt General Chase and Newspaper Man Aid in Rescue Work

Performances Next Friday and Saturday Something Doing Every Minute

Eight persons were injured yesterday afternoon, three seriously, in the only accident which served to mar an otherwise perfect occasion, when a horse ridden by Lieut. H. M. Ragle, Company A, Colorado National guard, became unmanageable and plunged into the midst of a wildly screaming mass of humanity packed in front of the house at 220 North Cascade avenue, just before the parade reached the reviewing stand. No. 220 is directly opposite the box occupied by Governor Shafroth and his official party, and the governor and those with him were among those who shouted warnings to the big crowd. Lieutenant Ragle was thrown, the horse falling with him and pawing wildly at the women and children knocked down and trampled on in the wild onrush.

All will recover, but the following were seriously hurt:

The Injured.
Lieutenant Ragle, 1103 North Arcadia street, neck cut and face bruised; given medical attention by National guard medical officer and taken home.

Mamie Schlegel, 19 years old, 709 South Weber street, cut and bruised about face and breast; attended by Dr. J. E. Waterhouse, Colorado National guard; taken home in ambulance.

Roy Davis, 9 years old, 232 Lowell street, contusions and abrasions; badly hurt about head; taken to 228 North Cascade avenue and treated by Dr. Waterhouse; taken home.

The other injured are:
Josephine Schlegel, 22 years old, 709 South Weber street, bruises about face and body; was able to walk home.

Mrs. R. W. Hunter, 1719 North Corona street, head cut and bruised about face; taken home in ambulance after being treated by Dr. Waterhouse.

Mrs. C. A. Hanna, 421 Royer street, bruised about head from fall.

Glady's Hanna, 19 years old, arm bruised.

Lois Hanna, 8 years old, bruised about arms and head.

C. O. Hendricks, 32 years old, of New York city, slight hemorrhage; taken to Glickner sanatorium in ambulance. Condition not serious at present.

Broken Blood Vessel.
Hendricks' condition is due to his attempt to escape the horse's hoofs. He was standing in the front row when the crazed animal rushed into the crowd, and although he avoided the horse, his excitement caused a broken blood vessel. He was carried to the house at 220 North Cascade avenue, and from there was taken in the ambulance to the sanatorium, where he has been living for the last several weeks. Physicians say that with quiet and careful treatment he will recover from his illness.

A warning cry of "Look out, I can't manage him!" from Lieutenant Ragle was the first intimation of danger the crowd received, but it came too late, and in a second, women and children

The second wild west show at Roswell park yesterday afternoon was an eye opener in more ways than one. Not only did the "brons" and Indians perform their parts to perfection, but the new stunts pulled off by the committee in charge more than fulfilled the expectations of the large crowd which filled the grandstand and overflowed out on the broad fields on each side. Those who went there expecting to see nothing, but a repetition of the show of the previous afternoon were happily disappointed, and witnessed enough new thrilling features to repay them for all their trouble.

Mingled with the gay robes and dress of the Indians were the multi-colored deckings of the cowpunchers, who, thoroughly filled with the carnival spirit and wild west atmosphere by the performance of Monday, indulged in many tricks and cavortings not on the program.

Throughout the performance yesterday not a single jarring note was in evidence. No near-accidents occurred, but there was enough of the leap and fire to the animals as well as to the human performers, to cause the quick indrawn breath and the gasp that means superlatively pleased astonishment.

Young Lad Conquers Outlaw.

Not discouraged by his failure Monday to ride the famous bucking bull, 12-year-old Wilbur Island, asked on by the plaudits of the crowd, started the show yesterday afternoon by mounting Slippery, a mare which is certainly well named. After a series of untimely buckings, Slippery started pell-mell for the grandstand, but was held off by two or three stalwart cowboys. Nothing daunted, he turned straight for the opposite side of the enclosure, but was sharply pulled up by her youthful rider, who had by that time thoroughly conquered her.

Jim Thomas of Cheyenne then bestrode Simple Swan, probably the most vicious animal in the outfit. Twice she attempted to crush her rider by "sunfishing," but he stuck on, and after a series of "black and white" bucks she owned herself thoroughly man-handled. Thomas is colored, and his black face was good-naturedly lighted as he dismounted to receive the applause for his game ride.

Without stirrups, Sterling Rolfe of Denver then betook himself to the cal-bused back of Iron King. New Iron King looks like a plowhorse, with the exception of a sly, white circle in his eyes. This white circle enlarged to its full capacity as soon as he felt the vice-like legs of his rider. He immediately began a series of elephantine bucks that were worse than the most vicious sunfishing ever put on the turf. And he kept it up. Rolfe slightly battered but still a fighter, hung on, and finally in the far end of the field, the animal stopped, with head hanging, beaten.

Claire Long of Chicaw Basin, Wyo., famous for its rough and ready cowpunchers, then rode Rooster. Rooster

AT ANCE OF THE IN

The beautiful floats moving toward the starting point.
Start of the Parade.
The work of getting the paraders ready for the start was an arduous task, but Chairman W. Arthur Perkins, Chief Marshal Henry Cobb Nickerson and Marshals Andy Adams, W. A. Davis and Fred S. Tucker and their aides handled it with admirable skill, and it was within half an hour of the appointed time—2 o'clock—that the long line, which, when in motion, stretched over a distance of nearly four miles, moved from the starting point on North Cascade avenue near the college.

All along that avenue, for block after block, and on both sides of every street through which the procession moved, the people stood in dense lines, filling sidewalks, lawns and walks and crowding into the street, leaning from the windows of buildings and taking advantage of every point from which a good view of the elaborate pageant could be had. Fully 50,000 people saw the parade at some point or another, and everywhere the utmost enthusiasm and appreciation of its countless interesting features were displayed.
Leading the line of march were Chairman Perkins and Chief Marshal Nickerson, and behind them Marshal Adams and his aides, William Holmes and L. G. Carpenter. Then came the Second regiment of the Colorado National Guard in command of Colonel W. A. Davis and Major E. J. Boughton. There were five companies in line, and the boys presented a neat, soldierly appearance in their khaki uniforms. They were cheered all along the line.

The Indians.
Right behind the soldiers, and bringing to mind the days when redskin and trooper clashed upon these very plains, came the Ute Indians, who are the guests of the city, riding in single file, led by Chief Buckskin Charlie, and arrayed in all the splendor of gay blankets, sparkling beads and brilliant paint and feathers. The Indians furnished the most picturesque feature of the parade. Among them rode the famous Chipeta, widow of Chief Ouray, her wrinkled visage gleaming with smiles and her hands waving constantly to the applauding throngs on either side. Following the Utes came the Santa Clara Indians from the Cliff Dwellings ruins, riding in big Crystal Park autos, and the youngsters dropping forth an Indian song.

Behind the Indians, and typifying the next step in the evolution of the plains at the base of Pike's Peak from the hunting ground of the Indian to the abode of the peaceful farmer, came mounted scouts and trappers, burros, pioneer cowpunchers in old-time prairie schooners, a mounted troop of cowboys of the newer generation, the wild west show performers, and finally 30 carriage loads of the pioneers of the Pike's Peak region—the veterans of peace, who are the quiet, modest heroes of the present celebration. In one of the carriages containing the grizzled old men who came across the plains in the early days, braving all the manifold dangers of the wilderness to blaze the trail of civilization, was W. E. Fabor, one of the founders of Colorado Springs, and one of the biggest of the many big men who laid here the cornerstones of a great and growing empire. Appreciative of the tribute owed to these brave men, the crowds all along the line greeted them with continuous applause, and although applause gratifies the ears of all men, the greatest satisfaction of these old-timers lay in the knowledge that they builded well.

Behind the pioneers came three prairie schooners just as they came across the plains one in '65, another in '71, and another in '72—and their picturesque appearance was one of the most novel features of the parade.

Old Firemen a Feature.
Then came another group of pioneers—the volunteer firemen of the early days of Colorado Springs. Led by H. T. O'Brien, the second chief of the old fire department, who was mounted, came fully 125 of the old-time fire fighters, carrying the banners which are the treasured relics of the companies. Among them were many members of the first company organized, the Babcock Chemicals, which was formed on December 21, 1872. Among them, occupying a carriage, was Judge Cavender of Leadville, H. A. McIntyre and J. H. Rue, while J. F. Humphrey and Charles Alken marched in the old blue shirts and caps they wore a quarter of a century ago. The old-timers drew the racing cart with which they made two world's records for the wet test, which have never been surpassed.

After them came the volunteers of a later date, 50 strong, members of the Adams Hose company, organized in 1891.
Next came the Colorado Midland band, to whose lively music marched fully 200 employees of the Colorado Midland shops, who had been given a special holiday, accompanied by three floats which were among the most original and interesting in the entire line. The first of the Midland's floats was descriptive of the wildflower excursion, and bore a small locomotive with a train of small cars. The engine was under full head of steam and whistled constantly, and a small boy, dressed as the conductor, went around and collected fares from the trainload of little girls, giving it a most realistic touch. However, only the reduced rates of the wildflower excursion were charged, and they were in imaginary money.

Another Midland Float.
The second float was a reproduction of the work of the mechanical department, and at lathes and boiler and drill, sturdy workmen, representing the best of young American manhood, worked with vim and vigor. The third float bore placards telling of points of interest, and from it a bevy of pretty girls threw bouquets of wild flowers among the spectators. The second of these floats was awarded the cup for the best mechanical display.

Carrying the mind back to the early days again, came an old tallyho, labeled "Pikes Peak or Bust," and a replica of the first state capitol as it stood in Colorado City, which was the first executive center of the state. Seated on the float were Mayor P. J. Hamble and other officials of Colorado City. This was one of the most interesting in the line and won the cup given for the most novel float.
Next came the famous 50-piece Indian band of the local lodge of Elks, headed by the redoubtable chief, "Jap" Austin, which was from the standpoint of novelty, both visual and musical, one of the big hits of the parade. Among the uninitiated the impression may still prevail that the painted, feathered savages who discoursed such excellent music were real Indians. Following the band came 200 or more lodge members in white trousers and dark serge coats, presenting a natty appearance. The float was one of the most beautiful in the parade, showing a wild scene of rocks and pines, among which stood a mammoth elk in all his native majesty, accompanied by a doe. Facing them were two hunters. The tableaux was strikingly realistic and the float won the second prize.

Sublime to Ridiculous.
From the sublime to the ridiculous was the next change, for behind this scene came Lou Fink's "original automobile," a decrepit wagon with a barrel in front and a horse hitched behind as motive power, while Jack McVey and Clyde Raby, as a pioneer couple, occupied the vehicle. It brought many a laugh from the crowds.

Another attractive float was that of Colorado Springs council No. 52, Knights of Columbus, which depicted a ship afloat upon a tropic sea, with palms waving on the nearby shore. It was refreshingly cool and won much admiration. Effective in design and symbolism was the float of Pike's Peak circle No. 142, Fraternal Order of Eagles, which consisted of a mountain top from which a half dozen kingly eagles looked down upon the human throngs below. Columbine homestead No. 152, Brotherhood of American Yeomen, followed with another handsome float, decorated in lavender and white, and with a big brown bear standing near the front. On the float were represented by a woman and two men, in appropriate costume, charity, wisdom and protection.

The Improved Order of Red Men, No. 173, came next with a float representing a dense forest in which a score of Indians rode. Pocomah's conspicuous among them. Colorado Springs camp No. 723, Modern Woodmen of America, with the members bearing their fraternal axes, had a picturesque float representing a woodman's cabin in the midst of a grassy clearing and with an old-fashioned well at one side.

The W. O. W. float.
Next came one of the most elaborate and beautiful floats of the parade, that of Colorado Springs camp No. 5, Woodmen of the World. A huge globe bearing a map of the world and mounted upon a gigantic log, occupied the center of the vehicle, and in the top of the globe was stuck an ax bearing the emblem of the order. The float represented a forest and several members of the order in their uniforms rode upon it. The drill of the order, commanded by Captain Richardson, followed.

Behind this came another of the great artistic feats of the pageant, the magnificent float of the Union Painters home, which was impressive in its allegorical nature and delightful in its beauty of design. The float of the float carried a miniature copy of a gateway to the home grounds, and just inside the gate was depicted a garden scene with two of the old residents of the home sitting in the garden. From the garden there a white stairway led up to a big sea shell, above the head of the float. In the shell was an angel, extending arms of blessing over the scene below. The Angel of Mercy hovering over the Painters home. The two old residents of the home seated in the garden were E. L. Lewis of the Minneapolis union and W. O. McFadyen of the St. Louis union. Miss Alice Gilmore represented the angel, Dahbud and around the steps and the shell was a mass of ferns. The float was artistically arranged. The float was drawn by four white horses, some of which were the words "Union Painters Home" worked out in gilt. There was no driver, the horses being led by four men dressed in white. This float was also led by the 1-1-1.

branch of the International Typographical union, for whose aid and invalid members the institution is maintained. It won first prize for organization float.

This float was a great favorite with the crowds, and was greeted with continuous handclapping.

Interesting Features.

An interesting float was that of the carpenters union, No. 515 of this city and 417 of Colorado City—a wooden dome about which were seated several pretty garbed women. This was followed by two score members of Bricklayers union No. 4, in marching order.

The Post of Colorado college, with its color scheme of black and flaming orange, was a novelty in every way. A ferocious looking tiger occupied an elevated position near the front, and beneath a canopy at the rear, which represented the traditional college cap, stood a group of students in cap and gown, singing college songs.

The Young Men's Christian association furnished another pleasing novelty, with a float bearing a horizontal bar upon which sturdy young athletes performed difficult feats. It was brightly decorated in the carnival colors. The Young Women's Christian association was represented by a basket of columbines formed of a band around the carriage box.

Little Toffie Cronwell, the 11-year-old daughter of James Cronwell, riding a tiny Shetland pony, and surrounded by a manly little company of Boy Scouts of America clad in khaki costumes and marching with military carriage and precision, enacted the role of queen of the carnival, and in her orange and white dress and regal bearing, who was every inch a queen. An Interesting Feature.

John W. Garrett, the local marksman brought up the rear of the parade with one of the most novel features. Attired in the garb of a hunter, he shot at targets thrown into the air by an Indian, aiming from every conceivable position, and eliciting constant applause by his clever marksmanship.

The judges of the parade were George V. Morgan of Kansas City, Mo.; H. Samuels of Wichita, Kan. and Samuel Ross of Washington, D. C. They also judged the building decorations, and late last evening announced their awards as given above.

After traversing the main business streets the procession disbanded, but for hours afterward the streets were black with people, the throng being undoubtedly the largest that ever assembled in this city.

The wild west show at Roswell park a program of western Indian dances by the Pie Indian company near Stratton park and the reception of the Pioneer association at the court house in the evening completed a day full of entertainment features that delighted home folks and visitors alike and won nothing but praise from all the happy thousands who enjoyed them.

The Moose Exhibit.

A novel float was that of the Electrical Workers upon a huge cloud on which played bolts of lightning. The union was also represented by two giant bedecked electric trucks.

Moose lodge No. 244, was the next big feature. Led by the Moose band, several hundred members of the order, bearded red and white parrots marched accompanied by a beautiful float decorated in white with red trimmings, in the center of which stood a huge moose. Around the animal were garbed a score of young women, daintily garbed in fluffy white and on a throne in the rear sat a queen in regal splendor.

Another attractive float was that of the Junior Order United American Mechanics, with a miniature brick house surrounded by a lawn.

They were followed by the fire department, led by Chief McCartin, the trucks and engine being attractively decorated in the carnival colors.

The Ladies of the Macarobes had a charmingly bedecked carriage, with red and white in effective contrast. A carriage representing Colorado City and adorned with the patriotic red, white and blue, and a float bearing large paintings of the entrance to the Garden of the Gods, were other pretty features, aside from the display of the scores of business firms whose enterprise contributed much to the novelty and interest of the moving panorama of color.

Many of the floats of the business firms were among the most elaborate exhibited. Among the exhibitors were the following:

Artistic Business Floats.

Fred S. Tucker Furniture Company—Float representing a room of colonial days. The arrangement was typical of colonial times, with spinning wheel in the center. The blending of colors set forth the float to splendid advantage.

East Ice and Coal Company—Palms and potted plants set on top of seven large cakes of ice. On six cakes appeared the words, "El Paso," with one cake in the center left blank.

Borst Brothers—Wigs and sheep of unusual size, with several large calves in a corral.

San Luis Valley Land and Irrigation Company—Large tallies decorated in the carnival colors and carrying a chorus of singers chanting the praises of the valley.

Giddings Brothers—Float representing a pavilion, prettily decorated with roses and pink ribbons. A canopy over it was also covered with the same decorations, the whole presenting a dainty and artistic appearance. Pretty girls added to its general attractiveness.

Dale & Dobb, Electric Signs—Four little girls stood up in tulip shaped glasses of gigantic size at the corners of the float, and in the center sat a pretty girl in a big basket dealing out samples in the shape of perfect to the crowds on either side of the street. The decorations were white, and the attractiveness of design was at once apparent. Many cheers were heard as the float passed the grandstand, and at every turn the applause was generous. This exhibit won first prize for the best float.

Colorado Springs Produce Exchange—Boxes of fruit of all kinds, arranged in luscious and appealing array on either side, with two little colored boys eating watermelon, to the envy of the spectators.

And Still They Come.

Sanitary Dairy Company—A beautiful float in white and gold.

Dora Tea and Coffee Company—

None of the injured attach any blame to Lieutenant Ragle, all realizing that the accident could not be helped. Several of his brother officers spoke of him in the highest terms. He displayed pluck and courage and had his mount not slipped and fallen he would possibly have ridden clear of his victims. He was assisted to his feet by General Chase, who used a sword scabbard to prevent the morbid curiosity from gathering around too closely and keeping the cool air from him. The sorrow Ragle felt over the accident was manifested in his robed face, and he flatly refused to be taken home in the ambulance. It was only after his superior officer so ordered that he acquiesced. He is bookkeeper for Shove, Aldrich & Co.

Only for a few moments did the accident draw attention, and by the time it was over most of the big crowd had forgotten it. The two houses, 220, which is a rooming house, and 228, a boarding house, on North Cascade avenue were for the time being practically turned into hospitals. The owners of each offered attending physicians and all assistance they desired. For this the National Guard officers were exceedingly grateful, as were the families of the injured.

Visitor Will Investigate.

Hildreth, president of the Franklin State bank at Franklin, Neb., witnessed the runaway from his automobile, which was standing at the corner of Boulder street and Cascade avenue. This was more than a block away from the grandstand, in front of which the eight persons were injured when Ragle's horse dashed into the crowd.

At Boulder street, Hildreth declared last night, the horse ran from the east to the west side of Cascade avenue, cut across a corner of the center parking and ran over a woman who was standing there with a number of others. He did not know the extent of her injuries, and the report could not be verified.

Hildreth followed the horse down the street and saw it plunge into the crowd in front of the grandstand. He believes that the runaway was due to carelessness and has asked the police to make a thorough investigation.

EX. A. L. PANZER

San Bernardino, Cal., Aug. 1.

The mountain fire which for a week has been devastating the slopes of the San Bernardino range north of this city, is now stretched for four miles along the backbone of the range and the whole valley is illuminated.

The exhausted rangers and their forces have given up the fight and it is believed that the fire will run unchecked until the entire range is laid bare. Millions of dollars worth of pine timber either is turned into charred stumps or is in the path of the blaze.

At 5:45 p. m. today the fire wiped out Clifton Heights, a small resort near the summit at Skyland, the occupants of the camp narrowly escaping. The conflagration rolled into great billows, passing Clifton and into Houston flats, where there are miles of unprotected timber. Back firing on the east side Houston flats to prevent the flames from the direction of city creek timber, got beyond control of the firefighters and swept into the flats from that side. Skyland which has been threatened by blazes in the brush half a dozen times was tonight confronted with almost certain destruction. No lives are imperiled as the camp was almost deserted several days ago.

The crest road, the artery of travel to the resorts, along the mountain, runs through Skyland and all efforts to carry food to the rangers east of that point have been temporarily abandoned.

Fair Weather Today

Generally fair is the prediction of the weather man for today, and after yesterday's wind the indications are favorable for a bright and comparatively windless day which will mean much to the aviators, whose chief concern is lest the mountain breezes be strong enough to render unduly hazardous some of the death-daring feats which they plan to perform.

Owing to the rarity of the atmosphere no attempts will be made to carry a passenger although numbers of persons among them, one daring woman have expressed a keen desire to make a flight. In fact, owing to this condition, the bird-men will carry their tanks only partly full of gasoline to lighten the weight as much as possible.

The flights are scheduled to begin at 4 o'clock, and for the rest of the afternoon, will furnish entertainment and excitement such as residents and visitors in this region have never before experienced.

Another interesting feature of today's program is the chuck dinner to be given by the cowboys in front of the city hall at 10 a. m. while in the evening the carnival spirit will reach its climax in the masking on the street and the grand mask ball at temple theater which in gaiety and brilliance promises to baffle description.

ER. ORO, Tex., Aug. 1.—Mine managers learned today that 3,000 pesos had been offered to anyone who would assassinate Frank Jenkins, the assistant manager of the El Oro mine, and that 1,000 pesos each would be paid for the life of his brother, William Jenkins and James Dunn, mine experts. All are Englishmen and have remained in the interests of their company.

F. M. Payton, the manager, also learned that two bombs had been placed in the mine and he has asked the president of the republic to order a rigid investigation.

None of the 10,000 miners in this camp nor in the Dos Estrellas, five kilometers distant, reported for work today. The towns are filled with idle men. Approximately 1,000 loops are on hand.

The management of the El Oro has refused to consider any demands of the men and has closed the property. Only the stamp mill and smelter are being operated.

Fearing a repetition of riots like yesterday's when a number of the strikers were killed and wounded by soldiers, many foreign women were sent out of the camp today. There is still evident a strong antiforeign sentiment.

was by no means pleased with the rough quart or flapping sombrero in the hands of his rider, and he showed it. The cavortings were of comparatively short duration, however, and he soon showed the white feather.

Indians Enhance (?) Music.
In the meantime the Midland band had been playing popular airs, and the music was much enhanced (?) by the physical gyrations of the Indians in the grandstand. Something in the music evidently caused their memories to hark back to the time when music, at least on the ten-ton mount, is a real and for sculps of the white man, and they added their eerie howls and dancing to the strains of the band. Incidentally they also consumed bottle after bottle of "pop," which they seemed only too glad to get at 5 per. The spectacle of the wild and woolly savagery of the plains calmly imbibing the effete "pop" of the white man's urchins, is just what was needed to make evident the close coordination of the wild past and the civilized present.

Bonehead—not a bit like his name, though—was the next animal brought out and blindfolded while the saddle was put on. The horse looked askance at Jack Ashbaugh of Colorado City, but his looks were nothing to his actions when Jack got on his back. There was no bridle in the rider's hands, and so handicapped, he had some difficulty in subduing the animal. At one time it appeared that he would fall, for the horse eluded the guarding cow-punchers and dashed for the grandstand and the railings around the track. He smashed against the railings, but failed to dislodge the rider, and the brute dashed back to the arena in front of the stand, a wiser though a sadder equine.

Ace Burngardner of this city, he of the red, red shirt, was assigned to Sleepy Jo. Sleepy did really look so until the bandage was snatched from his eyes. Then he woke up. By the time he fully realized that he had a man on his back he was very much awake. Ace managed to stay on throughout the entire series of animal contortions, but he seemed glad enough to dismount when the horse again assumed his sleepy expression in token of surrender.

Crandall on Blue Bell.
Chub Crandall of Blue Bell, Colo., also mounted a dyspeptic-looking horse, called Blue Bell. Crandall had apparently rung for the bell before the afternoon began, however, for she appeared not to resent the rider's presence on her back, and after a few ineffectual struggles, faded into the twilight of obscurity.

Jane Bernoudi of Arizona, a diminutive little miss in real cowgirl costume, next gave a fancy exhibition in rope-throwing and truck-roping stunts. Apparently unabashed by the applause of the grandstand, she gave a really wonderful exhibition of what may be accomplished by a perfect control of the sinuous coils of ropes of all sizes and lengths. A gallant youth, Buck Petri of Boulder, was her accomplished assistant during her show.

One of the most laughable affairs of the afternoon was the potato race between a team made up of Sid Poland and Jape Bernoudi, and one consisting of Dell Owens and Buck Petri. The game was played on horseback, and many were the exciting encounters as one of the contestants secured a potato to deposit in the box at the goal, only to lose it at the hands—or rather the long stick—of one of his opponents. Miss Bernoudi was so expert in dropping the potatoes, however, and so graceful and sure in eluding the attacks of her pursuers, that she was the main reason for the final victory of her team.

B. J. Ireland, manager of the show, was next inveigled onto the astonished back of Crazy Jane. Hardly had he mounted when she reared, fell over backward and hurled her rider heavily. Taunted by the cries of the crowd, Ireland again mounted the crazy horse and soon convinced her that if she stayed on her feet, he was her master. At the end of the feat, however, she had carried her rider nearly half way around the big elliptical track.

Jim Beats Iron King.
Jim Thomas, he of the Ethiopian countenance, next tied a rope around the belly of the already famous Iron King. The rope was there because it was to take the place of saddle, bridle and stirrups. Thomas then mounted and had a jolly good ride for his money, for Iron King thought he had the chance of his life. He did, but proved unequal to it, and the colored rider again was acclaimed conqueror.

Meanwhile, Nobe Johnson of this city, anxious to teach the youngsters how to ride, took it upon himself to act as a real bucking broncho, and the antics that he displayed, with the 6 and 8-year-old "kiddies" on his back, aroused much amusement in the grandstand.

While the last few riding stunts were being pulled off, the Indians had been gradually gathering around a "grain schooner," and without warning they dashed down on the unsuspecting settlers and cow-punchers, killing and wounding several. The whites were chased from the field of battle, but soon rallied and returned the murderous fire of the Indians, who were completely routed. The Indians did not fail to chant their famous war song, however, and sang that on their way to the grandstand.

A quarter-mile cowpony race, to settle the supremacy of the ponies of Jack Ashbaugh and Sid Poland, was won by the former.

A wild horse race, a 50-yard foot race between Jim Thomas and a Ute by the name of Founto, won by Thomas, and the grand finale, the Indian dance, offered a terpsichorean and visual feast that left all present thoroughly satisfied with the second day's performance at the big wild west show. The committee in charge promises that each day of the show, Friday and Saturday, there will be several new stunts, which will keep all on the qui vive in the white heat of expectancy. Captain Thomas Hardy, the world-famous rifle and revolver shot, will be present Friday to give exhibitions.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 1.—The voters of Missouri today authorized a bond issue of $2,500,000 for the rebuilding of the state capitol at Jefferson City. The building was destroyed by fire a little more than six months ago.

Oklahoma's Prize Cup Will Be Exhibited All Over the "Baby State"

Resolutions of thanks for the courteous treatment accorded Oklahoma people visiting in the Pikes Peak region by the various organizations and individuals of Colorado Springs, Colorado City and Manitou, were voted yesterday morning at a meeting of the Oklahoma society at Manitou. A committee consisting of W. B. Crump, Wynnewood; J. R. Callahan, Chicksaw; J. B. Wilson, Mayville; and F. J. Mitchell, Wynnewood, secretary and treasurer of the organization, was appointed to draft the resolutions formally and to see that the people of this region understand the kind of feelings which the Oklahomans bear toward everyone living at the foot of the Peak.

Yesterdays meeting, which was well attended, was presided over by Thomas Tracy, chairman of the organization. The cup won Monday by the Oklahoma delegation for the largest representation in the automobile parade, will be suitably engraved and sent to a visiting tour of the entire state of Oklahoma, thus showing at one and the same time the fraternal spirit which pervades the Pikes Peak region, the up-to-dateness of the Springs people, and the strength of the Oklahoma delegation in the region at present.

After the cup finishes its trip, it will be permanently placed on exhibition in Oklahoma City, the capital of the state, in custody of the Oklahoma Historical society. The Oklahoma people have made special arrangements for the Colorado Midland railroad for Oklahoma day on the midflow excursion of the road tomorrow. The train will leave the Midland-Santa Fe depot at 9 a. m., Manitou 9:31 a. m., and return home at 5:20 p. m. The railroad company has made up appropriate badge which may be secured at the office, 121 East Pikes Peak avenue, or opposite the postoffice in Manitou. It is expected that a large number of Oklahomans will avail themselves of the opportunity to spend the day together.

HEALTHY MOTHERS Women who bear children and remain healthy are those who prepare their systems in advance of baby's coming. Unless the mother aids nature in its prenatal work the crisis finds her system unequal to the demands made upon it, and she is often left with weakened health or chronic ailments. No remedy is so truly a help to nature as Mother's Friend, and no expectant mother should fail to use it. It relieves the pain and discomfort caused by the strain on the ligaments, makes pliant and elastic those fibers and muscles which nature is expanding, prevents numbness of limbs, and soothes the inflammation of breast glands. The system being thus prepared by Mother's Friend dispels the fear that the crisis may not be safely met. Train Service Will Be Continued for Present Service on the Colorado and Southern-Elizabeth line between this city and Eastgate, will not be discontinued for the present. The order was issued Monday night at 7:30 o'clock, and came direct from Vice President A. D. Parker. It was at first thought that the efforts of the Colorado Springs committee to secure a continuance of the service on the line had been successful, but it is now understood that the service is maintained only pending the completion of the "Y" at Elizabeth. In a telephone interview, however, Mr. Parker said that he does not know just when the service will be discontinued.

MAN WAS MADE TO LAUGH

And He Will Live Up to Expectations If He Attends Big Circus

Philosophers say that man was made to laugh. Man will live up to nature's intent when the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus comes to Colorado Springs on August 8. There are fifty clowns with the show. Any one of them could bring laughter tears to the eyes of a clothing store dummy. They cut their teeth on the funny bone of a nation.

They do not resort to the same old box of tricks that has been opened thousands of times on the savanah of the circus rings. They are original fellows. They invented laughter and have since been keeping it going in the amusement halls of Europe in the courts of Asiatic potentates and on the vaudeville stages. One needs but to look at them to laugh. Children shriek with delight, old ladies giggle, fat men roar, dyspeptics get well, undertakers quit their business and write jokes for the comic papers. In fact, this merry army of jesting and droll fellows has left a string of towns behind it laughing themselves into prosperity and health.

There is not a moment during the three hours that the show is in its height that the crowds are not laughing at the funny farces, skits and pantomimes performed by the clowns. One of their latest acts is performed with a runny airship that spells ruin to the foolish fellows who try to operate it. There is a comic north-pole expedition, a burlesque on Teddy in Africa, a satire on the climbing of Mount McKinley, a grotesque lion taming episode, a Chinese laundry farce, the sausage factory orchestra, Paderewski and the barber, and the Mars vestibule limited.

In addition to the fifty clowns there are a number of burlesque trapeze and horizontal bar performers and comical acrobat teams that are enough to make a horse laugh. Interest in the coming of the Forepaugh and Sells Brothers' circus has reached a high pitch. Its wonderful new equipment, its million-dollar menagerie and three miles of parade wonders are sure to create a sensation.

With an all star company of European performers at the head of the organization, a brand new spectacle to begin the regular performance and a dozen surefire thrillers thrown in for good measure, it is little wonder that the coming of the best circus in the world is awaited with impatience. On show day the downtown branch ticket office will be located at the Busy Corner. Reserved seats and admissions can be bought there at the regular prices.

After October 1, the number of saloons in this city will be limited to eight and the license will be $1,000 per annum for the retail dealers. The wholesale dealers will be charged $300 a year for selling liquor, and $300 additional if beer is handled. This was the decision of the council at its adjourned meeting last night.

The petition of billiard and pool hall dealers for permission to remain open on Sunday was taken up and refused after some discussion.

Bills for the last month were allowed.

PLUMBER TRIES TO COMMIT SUICIDE

Charles Smith, a plumber of 726 Colorado avenue, tried to commit suicide Sunday by drinking an ounce of laudanum. His wife discovered his condition and notified the police, who summoned Drs. For Three Long Years, Suffered Great Deal. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Brought Marvelous Results. In Few Weeks Cured Completely.

I was troubled with acne for three long years. My face was the only part affected but it caused great disfigurement, also suffering and loss of sleep. At first there appeared red, hard pimples which later contained white matter. I suffered a great deal, caused by the itching. I was in a state of perplexity when walking the streets or anywhere before the public. I used pills and other remedies but they failed completely. I thought of giving up when nothing would help but something told me to try the Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I used it for a few days and the pimples disappeared. I continued to use it for a few weeks and was cured completely. I can truthfully say that the Cuticura Remedies are not only all but more than this claim to be. Signed: C. R. Smith, 100 W. 10th Place, Chicago, Ill. May 8, 1911.

For more than a generation Cuticura Remedies have afforded the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. A cake of Cuticura Soap, 2¢, and a tin of Cuticura Ointment, 1¢, is a sufficient supply for the most severe cases. Although sold through out the world, a liberal sample of each with 3¢ post paid on the skin, will be sent free on application to IMPROVED DRUG & CHEM. CO., Dept. 24, Boston.

MASSENA, N. Y., Aug. 1.

Seven persons were drowned today in the St. Lawrence river when the ferry steamer Sirius struck a shoal eight miles below this city, capsizing and hurling its 75 passengers into the water. Four bodies have been recovered.

The steamer Sirius left here this morning for Cornwall on the Canadian side with 75 persons bound for a day's outing. Most of those aboard were residents of Ogdensburg and Massena. The Sirius started on the return trip about 4 o'clock this afternoon. Her passengers were seated on the deck when the crash came.

The deck was swept bare in a moment. Women who could not swim clutched to camp stools and other portable articles, while others, aided by male companions, fought their way to the overturned steamer. Picknics at the international park nearby in motor boats and skiffs, rushed to the rescue.

What the Press Agents Say

HOUSE OF A 1,000 CANDLES

The fascinating story of "The House of a Thousand Candles" will be told by the I. T. U. Stock company at the Opera house this afternoon and evening. The House of a Thousand Candles will be played all this week with another matinee Saturday afternoon.

Although Theodore Lorch has played two extended stock seasons in this city and previous to that often played week engagements at the Opera house there may be many of his admirers who do not know that he is of Russian descent, a son of a man who was at one time closely connected with the czar's court in St. Petersburg. Before Mr. Lorch was born, his father emigrated to this country. The family came as far west as Illinois and in Springfield, Theodore Lorch, the actor, was born.

At an early age he was taken back to St. Petersburg where he entered a school gymnasium, which the boys rivals in that country are called His father was killed and so his mother brought her family back to this country. Lorch grew up in Illinois but the stage ambition early manifested itself and soon he joined a traveling company. He worked long and hard in the support of various players at one time being leading man for Julia Marlowe. Finally a western firm offered to star Mr. Lorch and so under this management this popular actor toured the western territory for six or seven years with much success.

Having completed his contract with these men, Mr. Lorch managed himself, playing long seasons in Salt Lake, Denver, Colorado Springs, Little Rock and Oklahoma City. He will remain in this city until the middle of September. His plans for the winter have not been completed as yet, but he will probably head his own company next season as he has done in the past. A very flattering offer has been made Mr. Lorch to go into vaudeville, but whether he accepts it or not depends upon the prospects which develop for the winter in legitimate theaters.

Do you feel this way? Do you sometimes think you just can't work away at your studies or trade any longer? Do you have a poor appetite, and lay awake at night unable to sleep? Are your nerves all gone, and you just reach too? Has ambition to forge ahead in the world left you? If so, you will find Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will make you a different individual. It will set your liver to work. It will set things going in your stomach, and your appetite will come back. It will purify your blood. If there is any tendency in your family toward consumption, it will keep that dread destroyer away. Even after consumption has almost gained a foothold in the form of a cough, or a blood-spitting, or a wasting away, it is a remedy prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Rensselaer, N. Y., who has been a doctor for over 30 years, and has a wide experience and varied practice. Don't be misled by a penny-grabbing dealer into taking inferior substitutes for Dr. Pierce's medicine, recommended to be "just as good." For the full story of this great discovery, and the many cases of cure, read the book "The Golden Medical Discovery," containing 400 testimonials. World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. TODAY THE AEROPLANES

TODAY for the first time the people of Colorado Springs will have an opportunity of witnessing aeroplane flights in this city. Of course there are many people here to whom such an exhibition is not altogether a novelty, but certainly there are none to whom it has lost its charm. The aeroplane is still the latest wonder of science and in many respects it is the most amazing triumph that inventive genius has brought forth within our generation. The sensation of all beholders is the same they realize that the flight is an actual achievement, but they cannot get used to it. The wonder of the thing does not diminish; it seems as incomprehensible after it is over as it was before it began.

The people who will witness the aeroplane flights at Roswell Park today and tomorrow are fortunate in the opportunity to see two of the most competent and experienced operators in charge of machines of the most improved type. The Wright Aeroplane is not an experiment in any sense. It was the first successful craft of its kind, and although it has many rivals it remains the best and most reliable. For these reasons there is scarcely a possibility of anything happening to mar the success of the exhibitions at Roswell Park, and every citizen and visitor in Colorado Springs should take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.

READING FOR BOYS

LISTS of the "hundred best books" are as many and diverse as the flowers that bloom in the spring. Generally they satisfy nobody in particular except the man who compiles them, and sometimes it is doubtful whether they represent even his own unbiased opinion. Probably no two people could be found to agree on the hundred best books, or even the ten best, but hardly a year passes without the announcement by some publisher of a new "library" prepared by some scholar of distinction for the purpose of enabling the uncultured to acquire a thorough acquaintance with the world's best literature by the application of fifteen minutes a day for six months. Dr. Eliot, who ought to know the best in literature if anybody does, tried it a few months ago with the immediate effect of setting most prospective purchasers searching the biographical dictionaries to find out who some of the authors were.

Dr. Frank Crane contributes to one of the current magazines a discussion of the best reading matter for boys, and in it we find this list of "books which no boy should leave unread."

Homer's "Iliad" and "Odyssey," Dante's "Divine Comedy," Moliere's Plays, Shakespeare's Plays, Wordsworth's Poems, Dickens' Novels, Emerson's Essays, Gibbon's Rome, "The Arabian Nights," Virgil's "Aeneid," "Wilhelm Meister," "Les Misérables," Tennyson's Poems, Longfellow's Poems, Scott's Novels, Bacon's Essays, The Bible, Pilgrim's Progress.

Dr. Crane's ignorance of juvenile taste in literature is seemingly as deep as his love for the Classics. "Take Homer," he says: "Realize first the worth of it. It is the great imperial work of all literature. Buy a good English translation, with copious notes. Read it through. Mark with a pencil anything you think appeals to you as striking. Go through it again and you will find new beauties. The same is true of Virgil and of Dante. They are as if of another world than ours."

Quite true Virgil and Dante especially Dante are "as if of another world than ours," not merely to the average boy, but to the average reader of any age. No initiate will deny the charm of the classics, but to gravely admonish a healthy American youngster to pay less attention to "the Airship Boys" and Sherlock Holmes, and devote his days and nights to the study of "The Divine Comedy" is simply ludicrous.

Dr. Crane tells his youthful readers that "Carlyle's translation of Goethe's 'Wilhelm Meister' is the best," and that "it is worth all the time and struggle you put into it to be able to come at last into the rare charm of Carlyle's style"; also that Moliere's plays you will not find so hard to grasp. To know Moliere is better than to go to France. We learn also from Dr. Crane that the average boy "will be a much truer, saner soul for having read Victor Hugo's 'Les Misérables.'" He thinks that the normal youngster should revel in Wordsworth and find keen enjoyment in Bacon's essays, "which you may put beside Emerson's."

It seems to us that as literary adviser of the young, Dr. Crane has slipped a few cogs. Indeed, his list of the best juvenile books not only misses the mark entirely, but it would fail to arouse the interest of the average well educated adult. It is not a question of what youthful taste in reading ought to be, but of what it is. In Dr. Crane's list there are several books which any boy would thoroughly enjoy "The Arabian Nights," some of Dickens' novels and two or three of Scott's. In this hustling age, most readers, both boys and grown-ups, find Scott decidedly prosy, it takes him too long to tell his story, and this objection applies to some extent to Dickens also.

It is beside the point to urge that a careful reading of these works and of the other writers contained in Dr. Crane's list has a distinct cultural value which is wholly lacking in the sort of reading matter usually indulged in by young people. The fact is that the classics cited are, in their original form, too "deep" to arouse the interest of the young. However, there are numerous excellent condensations and versions of these works retold in simpler form which serve to arouse a genuine interest such as will lead to a careful study of the originals in later years. If a youngster can be induced to study the classics in this form there is some hope of keeping him out of the clutches of Nick Carter and Diamond Dick until he is old enough to know better.

THE NEW VS. THE OLD.

From the Troy Record
Governor Harmon of Ohio is said to be an old-fashioned Democrat with old-fashioned ideas in regard to the manner in which this world should be along. Governor Wilson of New Jersey is a new-fashioned Democrat with new ideas in regard to the duty of an executive. While the old ways seem to endure as if they are right, the new ways seem to endure as if they are right. The new ways seem to endure as if they are right. The new ways seem to endure as if they are right.

AID TO INJURED MINERS.

From the New York Times.
The preparations to hold in Pittsburgh next fall a national "first aid to the injured" field day, with an attendance of 30,000 miners, are creditable to the coal companies to be represented at the meeting. President Taft will be there, and Dr. Holmes, director of the bureau of mines, and his chief, Secretary Fisher, will address the miners and their employers after the mine explosive gallery has been opened to the public by way of illustration. In an amphitheater, looking down upon the improved colliery, thousands of spectators will witness the test explosions, the "entombment" of the miners, the trained action of the government's rescue corps, equipped with oxygen helmets, and the bringing back of the "wounded and dead," and the binding of feigned wounds and fractures. To many who will behold this spectacle of relief there will be recollections of more horrible things. In the work of rescue and prevention of mining accidents only the crudest measures have thus far been taken. Last year upward of 10,000 miners were killed, the majority of them in Pennsylvania chiefly because of lack of foresight and efficient preparation against disaster. In addition 250,000,000 tons of coal, Dr. Holmes says, were wasted because of this lax conduct of the mines that results in a yearly and increasing waste of human life. The nation at large will have an interest in the Pittsburgh exhibition next fall.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF JULY 12

From the Toronto Globe.
The usual celebration of the Twelfth of July is based on one theory of the advent of William III to the British throne, the recent coronation of George V suggests a quite different one. It is not difficult, and it is not useless, to contrast these theories for the purpose of ascertaining which comes nearer to historic truth, and which is the more helpful to British people seeking from history assistance in governing themselves. The battle of the Boyne was not a specially critical event in the long series of events that led to William III on the British throne and confirmed him upon it. The real event that ought to have been celebrated was the coronation of William as king of Great Britain by authority of acts of the parliaments of England and Scotland, respectively and separately, Ireland having at that time no effective means of expressing concurrence except inaction, or of expressing dissent except an armed uprising. And the real significance of the change of king was not that it secured to the British people freedom of religion, which was never in real danger, but that it changed so completely the tenure of the throne that the king has had ever since and must always have a purely parliamentary title to his office. Before the death of William the act of settlement, passed separately by the parliaments of England and Scotland, fixed the line of succession to the throne by virtue of the act George V is king of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, of the overseas dominions, and of the crown colonies. This was specially called to his attention the other day by the archbishop of Canterbury before he put the crown on King George's head, and was frankly and unreservedly admitted by the king himself before the great symbolic act was performed. Roman Catholics are quite as much interested as Protestants in having on the throne a king whose title depends on an act of parliament, and who would certainly be deprived of it by another act of parliament if he were to violate the law by assuming despotic powers. The religious freedom of the Roman Catholic, quite as much as that of the Protestant depends on the throne being filled by a king who holds it only by a parliamentary title, and whom parliament has deliberately and repeatedly deprived of the power of maintaining a standing army as a menace to his people's rights and liberties, whether political or religious. It could be a great advantage to all the people of all parts of the empire to have an event to celebrate in which they could unite that of one as to which they must differ.

Bearing in mind that James II was expelled from the throne, not because he was a religious bigot, but because he tried to deprive his subjects of their right of worship as they pleased, but because he actually persecuted and strove to subvert the institutions that guaranteed political freedom, Protestants who want something to celebrate might usefully select for that purpose the day on which they royal assent was given by a powerful monarch to the act of settlement which changed permanently and by universal consent the character of British kingship.

"DOLLAR DIPLOMACY" VINDICATED.

From the Springfield Republican, Independent
The decision of the king of England as arbitrator of the Alsop claim against Chile is more of a vindication of our department of state than appears on the surface. This affair has been pending since 1874, and the claim grew out of a loan of about $1,000,000 made to the government of Bolivia by an American firm, Alsop & Co., in return for the privilege of developing certain deposits of guano. But after the war of 1879-81 between Bolivia and Chile, Bolivia lost her coastline and the port of Atrica, where the revenues collected at the customs house were to have been security for the loan. Consequently the claim was brought against Chile, and has been more or less actively in dispute ever since. When Secretary Knox took up the matter with vigor two years ago, not long after coming into office, there was sharp criticism of his course, and there is no doubt that much ill-will toward the United States was aroused in Santiago. Citizens of the United States who were there engaged in business were greatly incensed, and declared that the hostility created by the position our government had assumed was such as to make it very difficult for them to do anything whatever with the Chileans. It was asserted that the Alsop claim had no merit whatever, and that by pressing it Secretary Knox was undoing much of what Elihu Root had painstakingly accomplished for the establishment of friendly relations with the South American people. It was even hinted that Secretary Knox's course was due to the alleged fact that a near relative of his had a personal interest in the Alsop claim.

Altogether a fine indictment was brought against the state department for its "dollar diplomacy," a phrase less familiar than not now, and there was holy indignation on the part of self-righteous critics of the administration. As a result of the state department's notification to Chile in November, 1909, that there must be settlement by direct negotiation or by submission to the large court falling which the United States legation at Santiago could be closed, it was finally decided to lay the matter before the English king as arbitrator. The announcement that the decision is an award of $950,000 to the American claimants is therefore a vindication of Secretary Knox's course and a refutation of the charge that he has lent the support of the state department and the administration to a claim without merit.

Where is now the festive Kermit who but lately was the goods?

Has he set up as a hermit in the sylvan solitude? Once he filled the daily paper with sharp analysis of our brood. What's become of all his capers? Where is little Kermit now? Here's the chair where he sat, Gifford, Gifford of the forest graft, used to sit until he differed on some things with Old Bill Taft. Where did little Gifford wander when his time had come to go? Is he planted way out yonder, where the suggestion-holders grow? Where has Chauncey gone and hid, with his jokes that were long hair? To my eyes the tears unbidden come when looking at his chair. Ah, his jokes were old and mellow in the days of Tubal Cain, and the world seems sad and yellow since we look for him in vain. Where are all those men whose splashing shook the country up last year, all the freshmen whose insuring charmed a jaded people's eye? The rain who clouded so shrewdly, clouded up but didn't rain, baited Uncle Joe so rudely—must we sigh for them in vain?

TO THE BARNYARD'S

THIRTY YEARS AGO TODAY

August 2, 1881.

Since the Utes had been removed from the country the game in Middle Park was said to be increasing rapidly and as soon as the law allowed, hunters expected to secure all the deer, elk, antelope and buffalo that they wanted.

The Hook and Ladder company had fitted up a fine club room over the City drug store.

Work was commenced on a new residence for Giles Cressay on North Nevada avenue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

August 2, 1891.

In a long editorial entitled "Helping the City," The Gazette urged that the contract for the new High school building be let soon and that Colorado Springs workmen be employed.

The county commissioners inspected Prospect lake and took a ride on the new steam tug "Chicago."

Joseph Rising and family left for their home in Aurora, Ill., after spending some time in this city. Mr. Rising was director of the Aurora Cotton mills and also of the Chicago and Iowa railroad.

WOLGAST SINKS BAYNESS
A SENEW M'FARLAND

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—Ability of three men to hit and to hit timely has kept the Chicago club baseball team in the thick of the fight for the leadership of the National league. This trio of hitters is composed of Heinie Zimmerman, Jimmy Doyle and Frank Schulte. Their batting has been the dread of the opposing twirlers.

If they had not walloped the ball consistently all through this interesting race Chicago probably would be closer to leading the second division than the first.

Heinie Zimmerman has been the hero of many contests this season. Pitchers fear him when he comes to the plate with men on bases as much as they do Hans Wagner. That is because "Zim" has a system all his own when swinging the hickory. He is likely to crack out the first ball pitched or he may play the striking-out game. He seldom does the latter. It is his hobby to step into the first ball served and if it goes wide he does not let the next go by. For that reason the opposing twirlers must strive to force him to hit at bad balls. If they get the ball over the plate they are taking a big risk of having the game broken up, as Zimmerman is one of the hardest sluggers in the league. Zimmerman has cultivated one thing recently, and that is ability to wait. As yet it is not highly polished, but sufficient to make him more valuable to the team.

Zimmerman, Schulte and Doyle represent the "driving in runs" power of the club. As this is Doyle's first year with the club, and Zimmerman's first year as a regular, it seems almost incredible. But it is true. Their records prove it and no better evidence can be had. The Chicago team has secured a total of 409 runs against opponents. Of this number this trio of stick wielders has driven in more than one-third.

Schulte leads with a record of having sent home 45 runs in 82 games, all the club has played this summer.

Zimmerman follows him with 45 and Doyle is next with 37. More evidence that these three men are the dangerous batters on the team is given by their averages. They are the first three on the list. Zimmerman, leading with .311; Doyle, second, with .310, and Schulte, third, with .309.

Extra base raps show that their hits have not been of the weakly kind. Between the three they have a total of 443 bases. They have 20 home runs, and Zimmerman second with six, while Doyle has four. They have made 29 triples, Schulte and Zimmerman each being credited with 11. The right fielder is first with doubles, having 12, and Doyle is second 16, while the second sacker has 14.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
An even 25 batters are topping the 300 list in the American league, with Ty Cobb, of course, in the lead, with the wonderful average of .438. He is the only hitter above the 400 notch, with Joe Jackson of Cleveland runner-up with 390.

Lajoie, with the assistance of a few pinch hits now and then, manages to stay with the leaders, while Sam Crawford of Detroit is running him a stern race. Eddie Collins, since his return to the game, has increased his mark materially, with his brother guardians of the infield in close pursuit.

In every department except sacrifice hitting, Cobb is in a class by himself, leading in stealing bases, scoring runs and hitting. Following are the records of the leaders.

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Hans Wagner and Captain Fred Clarke of the Pittsburgh team are still retaining their hold on the straight and place positions in the National league race for batting honor.

The sensation of the season, Fred Luderus of the Phillies, ranks third, but he has not been traveling at the murderous clip since leaving the home yard, his mark shrinking several points during the week just closed. McLean and Bates of Cincinnati are next, while Charley Doolin, who is now out of the game with a broken leg, is close behind the Red entry.

Becher of Cincinnati and Murray of New York rank first and second in the base-stealing division. In this department the Giants occupy six of the 10 leading positions.

Luderus of Philadelphia tops the sluggers, Schulte following. Fourteen players in the National league hitting 500 or over, as follows:

NO RACES AT DETROIT
DETROIT, Aug. 1.—A miniature cloudburst flooded the race track today a few minutes before the first race of the second day's Grand Circuit program was to have been called. It was decided to set the entire program back one day, thus extending the meeting to include Saturday.

The M. & M. stake, $10,000 for 2:24 trotters, which was to have been the big feature for tomorrow will be decided on Thursday. Lon McDonald and S. R. Fletcher, of Indianapolis, today became the owners of Lewis Forest, a horse prominently mentioned as favorite for the rich purse.

O'TOOLY REPORTS FRIDAY
PITTSBURGH, Aug. 1.—According to reports here today, Pitcher Marty O'Toole, purchased from the St. Paul American association club by Pittsburgh for $22,500, will report here for duty Friday. Catcher James Kelly may arrive with him.

If there is anything in persistency, Knockout Brown, the New York lightweight, will surely land a match with Champion Ad Wolgast one of these days. The New York aspirant figures that as there will be a five months intermission between now and the Welsh affair, there is plenty of time for a fight in the intervening period. To make the bout worth the champion's while, Brown is ready to post a side bet of $10,000, wagering that he can beat Wolgast in a 10-round affair.

TOPEKA, Aug. 1.—Topeka won in the thirteenth inning. Lincoln tied the score in the ninth after the locals had forged ahead in the eighth. In the thirteenth Hagerman weakened and two singles with a base on balls and Whitney's long fly scored the

A SURE TEST

From Lippincott's.
On a pleasant Sunday afternoon an old German and his youngest son were seated in the village inn. The father had partaken liberally of the homebrewed beer, and was warning his son against the evils of intemperance.
"Never drink too much, my son! A gentleman stops when he has enough.
To be drunk is a disgrace."
"Yes, father, but how can I tell when I have enough or am drunk?"
The old man pointed with his finger to the corner. "If you should see four men there, you would be drunk."
The boy looked long and earnestly.
"Yes, father, but—there is only one man in that corner."

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

From the New York Press.
Nothing fails like failure.
People who marry for money earn every cent of it they get.
The millionaires we don't defer to are the ones we never heard about.
The reason a woman's hat can seem to a man to cost so much is, she's his wife.
The first time a man borrows money he tries hard to pay it back; afterward harder not to.

Postpone Johnson Cup
Tourney Until May 9

On account of the rains that have soaked the course, the opening of the Colorado Springs Golf club regular season, scheduled with the first round of the Johnson Cup tournament, has been postponed until next Saturday. There was no golf at the club during the week but the rain has put the new turf in excellent condition and when the season does open, will make the play much faster.

Those wishing to subscribe to the fund to send Mack Davis, C. C. track star, to the intercollegiate meet at Chicago, June 6, can do so by notifying Graduate Manager Bowers at Hagerman hall, Main 1812 or the Sigma Chi fraternity house, Main 2576.

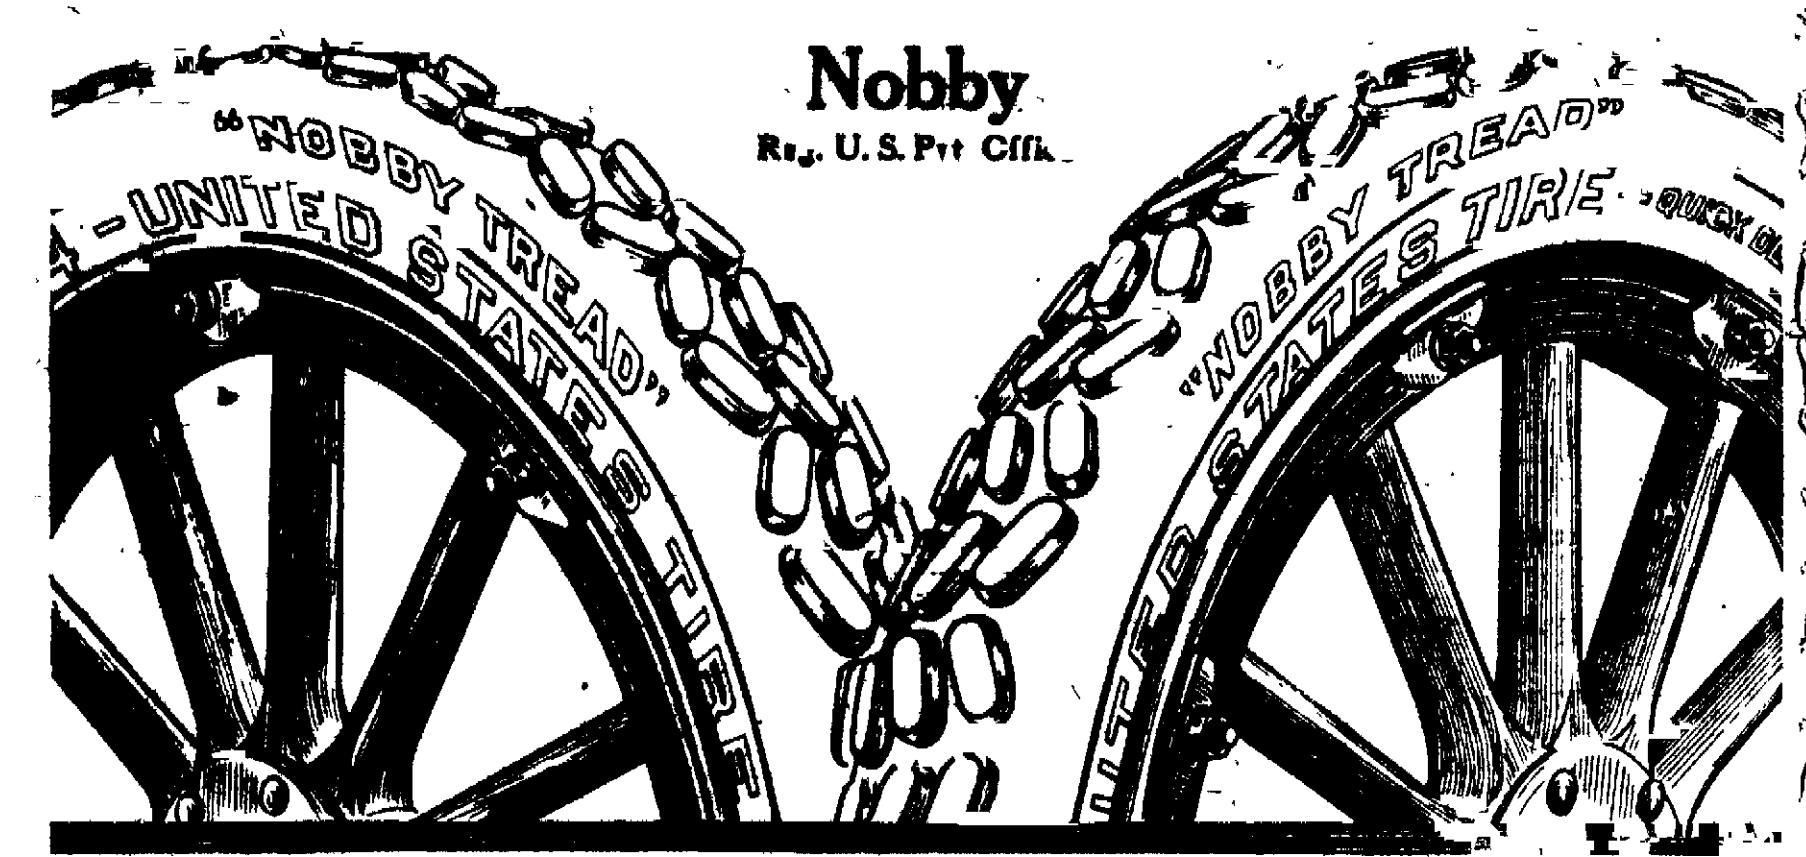

Colorado college will be represented at the western intercollegiate conference track and field meet, to be held at the University of Chicago field on June 6. Mack Davis, holder of three

MACK DAVIS

Rocky Mountain conference records, will be sent by Tiger fans to represent the Black and Gold. Davis will be entered in the shot put, discus throw, high jump and pole vault. His records for these events are:
Shot put—42 feet 2 inches.
Pole vault—11 feet, 3 1/2 inches.
High jump—5 feet, 9 1/2 inches.
(Tied with Hall and Hennebold.)
It will cost about $75 to send Davis to the meet and voluntary contributions can be sent to Manager Bowers. Any sum will be acceptable.
The University of Colorado is planning to send Cline and Ireland, sprinters, and Vincent, hurdler, to the meet. Three years ago the Tigers sent Vandemoer and Jardine to the meet at Champaign and Jardine running in the half-mile forced Davenport of Chicago to break the world's record for this event. Vandemoer did not fare so well but did creditably.
Judging from the past performances of Davis he will make a great fight for points at the big college Chicago classic. He stands a better chance of making points than those entered in the track events.

Anti-Prize Flight Bill
May Not Come to Vote
SACRAMENTO, Cal. May 1.—A discrepancy of one word in the anti-prize-flight initiative petition, filed at the secretary of state's office and containing a total of 34,349 signatures, will keep the measure off the 1914 ballot unless supplemental names are filed before August 1.
The attorney general and secretary of state have discovered that 27,782 persons signed sections of one petition and 6,621 signed sections of another, both similar in every respect except that in the enacting clause the word "state" was substituted instead of "who."
The attorney general has ruled that the changing of the word divides the petition into two separate measures.

Chiefs Get Passes to CHICAGO, May 1—Federal league players will not be required to pay their way into the Cub park this season. This was the announcement made by President Thomas recently when several of the Chief athletes visited the grounds, led by Manager Joe Tinker.

"No ball player will be refused admittance to the Chicago National league park," Thomas said. "The Cub park is a second home to Joe Tinker and it would be a crime for us to make him pay to get in to see his old pals perform."

In St. Louis last week Miner Brown's Federal league players were forced to pay to see the Cardinals and Pirates play and the men took it for granted that this held good all over the circuit.

Davis won from R. D. Adamson, 1 up and 1 to play in the first match round on the Pasadena golf club links. In the second round he disposed of H. W. Shurwood 4 up and 2.
